

Bobby Jones, Golf Champ, Coming Here With Motorcade

SCOUT CAR STOPS HERE OVER NIGHT ARRANGING ROUTE

President Of Appalachian Scenic Highway And Newspaper Men Chart Trip.

Coincident with the arrival in Gettysburg late today of the Scout Car mapping out the route of the motorcade from the south-land to Canada over the Appalachian Scenic Highway comes news from Atlanta, Georgia, that "Bobby" Jones, super golf champion of the world, has entered his automobile in the great tour which The Atlanta Journal will sponsor this fall over the famous highway, from Atlanta to Montreal and Quebec.

"Bobby," who holds the British open championship, the American open championship and the southern open championship, will drive a magnificent car presented to him last year by admiring friends at Sarasota, Florida, when he returned from winning the British and American championships. Mrs. Jones will accompany him, and they will have as their guest O. B. Keeler, golf writer for The Atlanta Journal, who is known far and wide as the greatest golf writer in the world and who is also known as "Bobby's Boswell."

"Bobby" will be entry No. 1 in the tour. Although the entry lists will not be officially opened until about July 1, he has been accepted and is looking forward to the trip with enthusiastic interest. The young golf champion is not only famous for his prowess with golf clubs, but he is personally popular with a circle of friends which extends throughout the United States, Canada and the British Isles. His presence in the tour, along with that of his beautiful and charming young wife, and with that of Mr. Keeler, will add much to the interest centering in the big event. They will be among the distinguished members of the big party, which will include governors, congressmen, mayors, state highway commissioners, publishers of news-

PUPILS READY FOR FIELD DAY

Preliminaries Will Start at Nixon Field at 8 O'clock; Finals at 9 O'clock.

Hundreds of boys and girls throughout Adams county were waiting impatiently today for the starter's whistle which will send them into strenuous athletic competitions in the annual Adams county field day here Saturday. Indications are that, with good weather, more than 800 public school children of the county will come here to compete.

The preliminary track events will begin at 8 o'clock, Saturday morning, on Nixon field, after which the finals will be staged. The volleyball and dodge ball contests will be staged at the Playground, Baltimore street, starting at 1 o'clock, Saturday afternoon.

The schedule of track and field events follows:

In the preliminary events, to be held at 8 o'clock, the boys in classes A, B, C and D will compete in the 100 yard dashes, while the first two classes will hold their tryouts in the 220 yard dash. The girls of the four classes will run off the preliminaries

MOTOR CLUB TO MEET TONIGHT

Several hundred members of the Gettysburg Motor club of Adams county, many of them accompanied by friends, are expected to attend the first get-together meeting of the club in the Hotel Gettysburg annex at 8 o'clock this evening.

No lengthy program of speech-making has been provided, and refreshments will be served at the close of the meeting.

FARM WEATHER REPORT

Eastern Pennsylvania: Fair and somewhat colder tonight. Saturday warmer, probably followed by showers in south portion.

Fresh candy for Mothers' Day. Keet Drug Store.

World's super-golf champion becomes entry No. 1 in the automobile tour which The Atlanta Journal will sponsor this fall over the famous Appalachian Scenic highway from Atlanta to Montreal and Quebec, through Gettysburg. "Bobby" will drive the big automobile presented to him by friends in Sarasota, Florida, when he returned from winning the British and American open golf championships. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Jones, and they will have O. B. Keeler, the noted golf writer, as their guest. The picture shows "Bobby," Mrs. Jones and Mr. Keeler standing beside the car which "Bobby" has entered.

MISS IVY TAWNEY DIES EARLY TODAY OF HEART DISEASE

Miss Ivy Faith Tawney, 41, well-known music instructor, died at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Tawney, West Middle street, at 2:20 o'clock this morning. She had been failing health a number of years, death resulting from a heart condition.

Miss Tawney graduated from Gettysburg high school in 1904 and afterward attended Irving college, Mechanicsburg, where she specialized in music. Returning to Gettysburg she gave instructions in music for a number of years.

She was active in St. James' Lutheran church and Sunday school, for a number of years singing on the choir. She was a member of Mary Gettys Rebekah lodge here.

Miss Tawney is survived by her parents and two sisters, Mrs. Carrie Pretz, Buford avenue, and Mrs. Norman S. Wolf, Bloomsburg.

Funeral services from the Tawney home Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock the Rev. Earl J. Bowman, pastor of St. James' Lutheran church, officiating. Interment in Evergreen cemetery.

Firemen To Hold First Plug Tests

The first of the summer tests for the Gettysburg fire department will be held this evening at 6:30 o'clock, when firemen will try out the new plugs recently installed on South street and Fourth street.

Members of the company are being urged to be at the engine house in time for the test, James B. Aumen, fire chief said.

ONE-THIRD PAY MERCANTILE FEE

Less than one-third of the 1,200 persons paying mercantile licenses in Adams county have settled for their 1927 licenses, Harry J. Troxell, county treasurer, said today.

Under a new ruling of the state, the licenses were due May 1, this year, and Mr. Troxell is urging holders of licenses to settle as soon as possible.

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENTS

A daughter was born Monday at the Warner hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Edward Finn, Tipton apartments, East Middle street. Both mother and child are doing nicely. Mr. Finn is connected with the local office of the state highway department.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. James Kuhn, Bonneville, Thursday evening. Both mother and child are reported to be doing nicely.

TO HOLD MINSTREL

Members of the Degree of Pocahontas, Improved Order of Red Men, of Gettysburg and Hanover, will stage a minstrel show in the P. O. GIVE PROGRAM AT HIGH SCHOOL

Concert by Combined Musical Clubs to be Concluding Event of Music Week.

Gettysburg added another chapter to its 1927 contribution to National Music Week, Thursday evening, when an exceptionally pleasing and diversified program of music and readings was presented in the auditorium of the Gettysburg high school. A fair-sized audience vigorously applauded each number and the participating artists graciously responded with encores.

Some of the best available talent in Gettysburg was brought together for the evening's entertainment. All who participated gave their services free, and many persons in the audience complimented the music week committee for its efforts in presenting a program of such high character.

The program follows:
Soprano solos, "Dream Garden" and "June Is In My Heart," Mrs. N. L. Horn; piano solo, "Polish Dance," Miss Kathleen Thomas; soprano solo, "The Hours Creep On Apace," Miss Dorothy Gilbert; vocal duet, "Barcarolle," Mrs. Charles J. Myers and Miss Marie Codori; cello solo, "Minuet in G" and "Berceuse" from "Jocelyn," Dr. Preston H. Edwards; soprano solo, "A May Morning" and "By the Waters of Minnetonka," Mrs. M. K. Eckert; readings, Dr. Francis C. Mason; soprano solo, "I'm Called Little Buttercup," Miss Madolyn Culp; vocal duet, "Refrain Audacious Tar," Miss Dorothy Gilbert and Emmert Colestock; violin solo, "Meditation" from "Thais," Rex Gilbert, and vocal quartet, "Oh, Joy, Oh, Rapture," Miss Dorothy Gilbert, Miss Frances Eberhart, Emmert Colestock and Donald Stoner.

The concluding public event locally for National Music Week will be a concert by the combined musical clubs of Gettysburg college in the Eddie Plank Memorial gymnasium, Sunday afternoon. The concert is open to the public and is being held as the concluding event on a week-end program of activities in connection with Mothers' Day at the college.

COUNTY RESIDENT CAPTURES OWLS

J. H. Hahn, York Springs Route 2, came across two owls in his barn Wednesday morning about ten o'clock and captured both of them, which are now in a pen for safe keeping.

These owls, a male and female, measure about forty-four inches across the wings. They have snow-white breasts and a bronze and white back and wings. The faces bear a strong resemblance of that of monkeys, the legs are unfeathered and unusually smooth. Mr. Hahn is offering the owls for sale.

FUEL COMPANY SUIT IS STARTED AGAINST CONCERN

Musselman Files Counter-Claim In Damage Case Now Before Court.

Trial of the civil action, brought by the Atlas fuel company, of Pittsburgh, against the C. H. Musselman company, Biglerville, which began before Judge D. P. McPherson in court here Thursday was still in progress this afternoon, with indications that it would not be given to the jury until late today or early Saturday morning.

The fuel company is asking approximately $830, while the Biglerville company has a counter claim of approximately $900.

District Attorney John P. Butt represents the plaintiff, while Attorney William Hersh is counsel for the Biglerville concern.

Denial that his client, the C. H. Musselman company, Biglerville, had no counter-claim against the Raub Supply company, Lancaster, as previously stated, was made today by Attorney William Hersh. The Musselman company, defendant in the action brought by the Lancaster concern to recover approximately $400, was awarded a verdict of $4.51 by a jury in court here Thursday. The Biglerville company's claim was between $400 and $500.

FISHER SIGNS LICENSE BILLS

Hunters and Fishermen Will Pay More For Privileges This Year.

Harrisburg, May 6.—(AP)—The cost of hunting and fishing in Pennsylvania was increased when Governor Fisher today approved the Quigley bill raising the resident hunters' license fees from $1.25 to $2 and the Ere bill increasing resident fishermen's licenses from $1 to $1.50.

The increase in the hunters' licenses must be used for acquisition and maintenance of public hunting grounds and game refuges and for the purchasing of outstanding timber.

Under the Ere bill all money received from fishermen's license in excess of $350,000 must be used for the propagation and distribution of fish. Both bills had stormy passages through the legislature.

The governor also approved the Marcus bill fixing the minimum and maximum pay of election judges, inspectors and clerks at $5 and $10 a day.

Kidnapped Men Are Given Release

New York, May 6.—(AP)—Abram Charlin, of Chicago, and James Taylor, who had been held prisoners for ransom by a kidnapping gang, were released today, police announced. Police believe the release of the men was prompted by the killing yesterday of Joseph Marcus and the arrest of Davis Berman and Charles Kraemer, suspected of having been involved in the kidnapping. The kidnapping occurred April 28.

DR. POTTER APPOINTED

Trenton, N. J., May 6.—(AP)—State Institution Commissioner Ellis today announced the appointment of Dr. Ellen C. Potter as medical director of the new North Jersey training school for feeble minded. She will assume her duties July 1.

17 NORWAY MAPLES GIVEN HOSPITAL BY D. C. RUDISILL

Authorities at the Annie M. Warner hospital today acknowledged receipt of seventeen Norway maple trees from D. C. Rudisill, Baltimore 'pike, a former member of the state legislature from Adams county.

In response to a plea for shade trees issued several weeks ago, the hospital has received 24, seven having been the gift of W. S. Adams, Gardner's R. D. Additional trees can still be used in helping to beautify the grounds around the hospital, it was stated. Trees of almost any hardy variety will be appreciated, hospital authorities said.

3 TO GET HONORS AT BIGLERVILLE

Two Boys and Girl Are Highest in Class of 35 to be Graduated May 25.

So close were the grades received by three seniors of the Biglerville high school that all three have been cited for honors instead of just two, as has previously been the custom. Announcement was made today that the honors will be divided among Donald Heiges, Betty Dill and Franklin Bigham.

These three students will give orations as part of the commencement exercises of the high school which will be held May 25 at the auditorium at that place. Dr. Leon C. Prince, professor of history at Dickinson college, will be the commencement orator.

The thirty-five members of the class are now preparing for the exercises which will be held during the week of May 22, starting with the baccalaureate services to be held in the Lutheran church at Biglerville at 8 o'clock, May 22. The Rev. Murray E. Ness, pastor of the Reformed churches at Bendersville and Biglerville, will deliver the sermon to the class.

The class day exercises will be held Tuesday evening, May 24 when the usual presentations will be made and on Wednesday evening the commencement addresses will be made.

In grading the seniors, the members of the faculty found that there was only one one-hundredth of a point difference in the marks of Miss Dill and Mr. Bigham, and for this reason it was decided to name three honor students in place of the usual valedictorian and salutatorian.

FIGHT TO KEEP FLOOD IN BANKS

Widening of Breaks in Levees Increased Difficulties of Rescuers.

New Orleans, May 6.—(AP)—With practically all of northeastern Louisiana now under water, national and state forces combating the flood now rolling down the Mississippi redoubled their efforts today to pass the overflow back to the mighty river and hold it there on its way to the sea.

Should these efforts be successful the worst of the greatest flood in the history of the Mississippi valley will be over. Should they fail thousands of more square miles of rich farming and industrial sections will be overrun with probably another 100,000 people made homeless.

The rapid widening of the breaks in the Mississippi above Vicksburg has increased the difficulties of rescue work and some apprehension is felt for the safety of hundreds in that area.

Rescue fleets are moving about in the territory as speedily as possible to save the marooned, many thousands of whom already have been evacuated. New towns are being claimed by the floods daily and upwards of a score have been inundated since yesterday.

STOCK REPORT

New York, May 6.—(AP)—Having success in trapping a large short interest in many issues, speculators for the advance continued to press their advantage in today's stock market, shifting their operations from one group to another. The rapid churning about of prices lifted more than a score of issues to new peaks for the year.

The Adams County Building and Loan Association has moved from the A. B. Plank store room on Baltimore street to the law offices of Raymond F. Topper, Baltimore street, next to the court house.

Johnson's wax floor polisher for rent at $1.00 per day. Large supply of wax in stock. H. T. Maring.

COUNTY THIRD IN PEACH SHIPPING WITH 100 CARS

Biglerville Dispatched 98 Of 100 Cars Sent From This Section During 1926.

Although Biglerville was the second largest loading point for peaches in the state last year, with a total of 98 carloads, Adams county stood third in the number of peaches shipped during the year, 100 cars being dispatched, according to a bulletin from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Franklin county led the state with a total of 425 cars of peaches during the year which is over half of the total shipments made throughout the state and three times as many as the next highest county.

The total shipments for the state were 826 carloads for 1926, four times as many as in 1925, when a freeze reduced the number to 199 cars, figures compiled by the bureau of markets show.

Berks Stands Second

Berks county lost its leadership last year to Franklin, but stood second with total shipments of 141 cars, considerably more than in 1925, when 59 cars were dispatched. Leesport was the heaviest loading point in that county and the third largest in the state.

York county growers shipped 60 cars during 1926 as compared with 29 the preceding year and Cumberland county was fifth with a total of 40 cars which was 10 times as many as were shipped the preceding year.

Other peach shipping counties in the order of their importance are: Carbon, 12; Northumberland and Wyoming, 10 each; Union, 5, and Lycoming and Montgomery, 3 cars each.

GRAY FINISHES HIS TESTIMONY

Unperturbed Mien Irritates Attorney For Co-defendant in Murder Trial.

New York, May 6.—(AP)—The state cross-examination of Henry Judd Gray, corset salesman, charged with the murder of Albert Snyder, ended today.

In answer to all questions by the district attorney Gray said that he and Mrs. Ruth Snyder, his co-defendant, had joined in the attack that resulted in Mrs. Snyder's husband's death.

The district attorney questioned Gray for half an hour whereas counsel for Mrs. Snyder had examined him for eight hours and his own lawyer for six.

Gray was calm and answered in a clear even voice. Mrs. Snyder sat staring at him from the defense counsel table.

The courteous manner in which Gray answered all questions ending each sentence with a polite "Sir" or "Mr. Wallace" seemed to annoy Danna Wallace, counsel for Mrs. Snyder.

"Don't call me Mr. Wallace," he snapped. "All I want of you is just yes or no to my questions."

"Very well, Mr. Wallace," Gray agreed, and Wallace glared at him. "Why did you take part in the attack on Snyder? What had you to gain by his death?"

"That," said the little corset salesman, "is what I would like to know."

"You mean you had nothing to gain?"

"I certainly did not."

PASTOR HELD IN JAIL

Lock Haven, May 6.—(AP)—Following a hearing yesterday before an alderman on a number of serious charges in which the parents of young girls were the complainants, the Rev. D. J. Benjamin, of Avis, was remanded to the county jail for trial. The defendant entered a plea of not guilty but made no defense.

SCHOOL BOARD CONVICTED

Wilkes-Barre, May 6.—(AP)—A verdict of guilty was returned in court here today against six former Hanover township school directors, an architect and a contractor. The men were charged with conspiracy to defraud the school district. The case was given to the jury yesterday.

St. Mary's Seniors Hold Class Banquet

Emmitsburg, Md., May 6.—The first of the activities in connection with the 119th annual commencement at Mount St. Mary's college took place this evening with the banquet of the senior class.

The banquet was served in the main dining hall of the college which was artistically decorated for the occasion, the college colors of blue and white predominating.

Philip Ley, of Dunora, Pa., president of the class, acted as toastmaster. The Rt. Rev. Monsignor B. J. Bradley, president of the college, and the Rt. Rev. Monsignor John J. Tierney, dean of the institution, were the honored guests of the occasion.

EMMITSBURG HAS COMMUNITY SING

Emmitsburg, Md., May 6.—In keeping with the spirit of National Music Week, a large crowd collected in the square on Tuesday evening when a community sing was held. The program was under the direction of Mrs. E. L. Higbee, organist at the Reformed church.

Members of the different church choirs in town with a large number of school children participated in the singing. The Emmitt Cornet band played a number of selections.

Telegraph Monopoly May Lose Immunity

Paris.—The French government telegraph monopoly is likely soon to be held responsible for damages caused by its errors, as is the rule in all business.

Back in 1850, when telegraph keys were stuttering with some irregularity, the government protected itself from damage claims by a specific exemption.

Woman Pays

The old order was reversed when a San Francisco judge ordered the 200-pound Mrs. Marguerite Mulready to pay her diminutive husband, B. J. Mulready, $750 alimony. It was computed at $50 for every time she hit him; the same rate assessed wife beaters in the court.

DEATH THREAT IS SENT GOV. FULLER

Note Signed AD-KKK Promises
Reprisal If Sacco and Vanzetti Are Executed.

Boston, May 6.—(AP)—The first threat against Gov. Alvan T. Fuller in connection with protests against the sentencing to death of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti for murder reached the governor yesterday.

It was laid on his desk as he was preparing to study the appeal for "justice" sent to his office by Vanzetti Wednesday night with several affidavits alleging prejudice on the part of Judge Webster Thayer, who conducted the trial of the two men and refused their pleas for a new trial.

Governor Fuller made public the threatening letter without comment and said he would have no statement to make about Vanzetti's appeal until he had read it carefully. The letter was mailed in Chicago Wednesday and was signed "The French-American Bankers and Unions' Cooperation AD-KKK."

"If you will execute Sacco and Vanzetti," it was crudely-worded threat, "we going to murder you, all your family and turn your home into ashes; the same we do with your judge and chief justice, as they got our note last week."

Judge Thayer, understood to be away from his home in Worcester for a week's rest, could not be reached.

papers, mayors, leading educators, heads of civic organizations and many other notables.

"Both Mrs. Jones and I are eagerly anticipating the trip to Canada with the Journal party," said "Bobby." "We have been hearing of the historic and scenic beauties of the Appalachian Scenic highway for a long time, and we want to view them for ourselves. We know that this tour, under the sponsorship of The Atlanta Journal, will be a great success and that every tourist will have the time of his or her life. We are also happy that our good friend, Mr. Keeler, has accepted our invitation to go along with us."

The members of the scout car who are here now are Roscoe A. Marvel, president of the Appalachian Scenic Highway, of Asheville, North Carolina; Harlee Branch, manager of the International Motorcade bureau of the Atlanta Journal, and Harvey Holleman, of the editorial staff of the "Nomad" magazine. They are spending tonight at Hotel Gettysburg.

Women Must Wear Hats At Tea Dances

London.—Women must not remove their hats to dance at "the dansants" which take place in some of London's older and more conservative restaurants.

To break this rule invariably leads to a request to recover or leave the dance floor.

The majority of Englishwomen today are owners of sleek shingled heads and are accustomed to take off their hats on occasions when the women of a generation ago would not have dreamed of "uncovering." In some quarters, however, the old ideas still prevail.

MILLION TREES PLANTED IN NORTH

Scranton, (AP).—One million trees will be planted this spring by the Pennsylvania Forestry department in Northeastern Pennsylvania.

R. Lynn Emerick, district forester, who made the announcement, explained that the trees will be distributed over one thousand acres of land in Lackawanna, Susquehanna, Wayne and parts of Wyoming and Luzerne counties. It is one of the most extensive reforestation programs ever planned in this section.

Not only is the state department of forestry busy in this respect, but so are industrial concerns. The Glen Alden Coal company will plant 65,000 trees this year as part of its five-year reforestation program, which was inaugurated a year ago with the planting of 30,000 seedlings on the west mountain.

High school students interested in forestry are being engaged to carry on the work of planting the trees. Seedlings of white and Scotch pine, which are specially valuable for mine requirements, are being planted by the coal company.

Pure bred sheep commanded higher prices last year than the year before. There were 14,376 sheep of the ten leading breeds reported sold, Rambouillet predominating with 8,078. Those selling below $15 comprised 11.4 per cent, from $15 to $100, 86.7 per cent, and those at $100 and above, 1.9 per cent. If you want a thing badly done, commend me to a committee of distinguished persons.

BULLETS OUTHIT HANOVER RAIDERS

Farren Pitches Good Ball Until 7th; Error Gives Leaguers
Victory, 4-3.

Ira Plank's Gettysburg college baseball aggregation outhit the Hanover Raiders 10 to 5 yesterday, and save for just a few minutes in Hanover's half of the eighth inning played a better brand of ball than did the Raiders, but the latter won, 4 to 3.

Gettysburg's defensive works faltered for a second in the seventh inning and this slip-up, a fumbled grounder and a subsequent wild throw to first by Craun let Hanover players trod home with the second and third runs of the inning and game. Then a single by Frank Roscoe, veteran outfielder and pitcher, sent Auffarth across the home base with the Raiders' fourth and final run of the game.

Behind the remarkable twirling of Eddie Farren, the Gettysburg players flashed a remarkable class of ball until the seventh inning. After Roetz had doubled in the first inning with two hands out until Matthews, a Red Lion boy trying out for a catching berth with the Raiders, singled in the seventh inning, Farren was unhittable.

He was relieved by Smiling Al Jones in the seventh inning after he had walked Auffarth, loading the bases. Previous to Farren's exit one run had been scored by Hanover in this frame. After Craun's wild heave that left two runs score and after Roscoe's single, which sent home the winning run, Jones settled down and he too hurled fine ball.

Gettysburg got to Polen in the third inning and bunched a hit batsman, an error by Polen, a single by Rader, a double by Bream and a scratch single by Shull for three runs.

Old Steamer Junked

The demand for speed has resulted in the demise of the old excursion steamer Iroquois, which carried thousands of pleasure seekers over the waters of Conneaut Lake during the quarter of a century since it left the ways. Two new craft, smaller and speedier, will take its place. Most indecent books are so stupid that in order to get them read it is necessary to denounce them.

Matinee Ladies

BY William B. Courtney

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"MATINEE LADIES," with May McAvoy, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Bob Ward, working his way through college, finds with his chums, Freddy and Arch, an easy way to earn money—working as dancing partners, of afternoons, for rich women in a fashionable New Jersey roadhouse. Bob thinks it isn't a fit way to make a living; but, to get funds to finish school, goes. At the Inn he sees the prettiest, sweetest girl he has ever laid eyes on. She is Sally the cigarette girl. He hears of a mysterious Mrs. Hammond, who frequents the Inn; and is advised by Mazie, a gold-digger, to play up to Mrs. Hammond if she asks to meet him.

CHAPTER VII

Bob Ward resented Mazie's insinuation that he should be at all interested in the love-nest that Mrs. Hammond had waiting for the fortunate boy of her choice. Bob had no intention of selling his honor, or sacrificing his own sense of decency, to curry the favor and money of Mrs. Hammond—or sixty Mrs. Hammonds!

Hot disavowals rose to his lips, scaldingly. There were some things in life—

But now the dance had ended. And Mazie's butter-and-egg man, grimly determined not to give her another instant with this too-hand-some college boy, had whisked her off.

Bob's indignation remained unvoiced. In the milling shuffle of the crowd, surging off the dancing floor, Bob was marooned.

Involuntarily, instead of streaking off to the stall table where the paid entertainers usually congregate while awaiting selection by the dancing matinee ladies, Bob found himself hesitating, and looking diffidently toward Madame Leonine—toward Mrs. Hammond.

Were they—was she—really smiling to him? Or was he imagining things? Yes, that was it; his imagination was running away with him, because of all the wild

He must show those smart Alecks that he could take care of himself. That Mrs. Hammond meant no more to him than any other woman with whom he was paid to dance. It would be a great feather in his cap to put THAT over on the boys. How he could kid them about it afterwards! Shut them up forever!

He was walking fast now—towards the enigmatic smile of the famous and mysterious woman. He was no longer conscious of Madame Leonine's beckoning professional summons. He was only aware now of dark eyes—of a fascinating head, as delicately poised on a swaying stem of a neck as a cobra's. Snakes!

Quicker, quicker, he walked. He had almost reached the fringe of the tables now, where the erstwhile tangoers were settling for a brief respite. He was in a kind of spell. All these thoughts had been racing through his dazed brain like a cascading torrent of water. Hazy, muddled water.

Who—who was this, stepping out in front of him so suddenly? Blocking his way. Sally! Oh, yes, Sally! He had almost forgotten her. The dream aura of the earlier afternoon had been dispersed, dissolved, in a cloud of mingled emotions, impressions.

Still, he had been on the point of fighting for her good name but ten minutes since. Seeing her mellow honey hair, her bright eyes, his mind cleared up with a snap. Was cleaned out, as a cold wind searches out a country brook on a sunny midwinter day.

But—what was this? Little Sally Smith's dear eyes were troubled? She pretended to encounter him quite by accident—casually, as employees may reasonably be expected to pass, and exchange a word in passing.

She said to him, in a tense little whisper, so boldly that she hardly recognized the sound of her own low voice:

"I like you, Mr.—Bob—Ward. But, listen—"

The innocent confession of eager girlhood, Bob, thrilling to the unreality, the incredibility, of this prolonged afternoon dream, blinked and flushed—and hoped nobody would awaken him. He had never before heard a human voice give expression to such sweet music.

Sally was frightened to death by her own temerity. She was sorry the dancing floor boards were so unyielding. She wanted to sink out of sight. But, with the curious fatalism and regardlessness of consequence so peculiar to females when they have once decided to tell the truth, she persisted:

"—and—and I wouldn't like to see you let this Mrs. Hammond get her fingers around you!"

"But," objected Bob lamely, "I have to dance with whomever the Madame assigns me to, don't I?" Sally, craftily watching to see that the Madame was not growing too impatient because of Bob's delay, grew almost regal with jealousy:

"Of course, your reputation is made here if Mrs. Hammond likes your dancing."

"I want only to make a reputation with you!" she said.

Even her tender years did not detract from Sally's sex instinct for seizing her advantage and rubbing it in, like salt on a bare wound!

"I couldn't help overhearing her say to Madame Leo that you were the best looking boy that she's ever seen!"

There were tears trembling in the low timbre of Sally Smith's whisper as she cast off that tentative anchor. A drag—a pull—a bump; and the Ship of Love was safely held on the seas of new romance. For Bob replied, with an humbleness and abjectness that would have warmed the cockles of many a more worldly wise heart than that of Sally Smith, the little cigarette girl:

"Let her say what she pleases."

Flattery doesn't make a hit with me. Neither her nor anybody else can make me look away from you, Miss—Sally. Why, Mrs. Hammond's old enough to be my mother!

Oh, that last was a lovely line, thought. It set wild melodies free in Sally Smith's heart. Reassuring, comforting song—for even love's young dream likes to feel secure. And now she warned happily:

"Sssshh! See, Madame Leo is getting miffed because you're delaying to talk to me, while the great Mrs. Hammond waits. Run along now—Bob!"

Which he did. Cheeks hot, eyes glowing, with the sheer delight of having heard his name breathed from that soft little rosebud mouth.

Unfortunately for Sally, the ardor which her words had aroused in Bob's face and manner only served to make him the more attractive to Mrs. Hammond.

She pretended to encounter him quite by accident.

things Mazie had been telling him. Hah! The heat, the spell of the dancing, the jazz delirium, were getting under his skin—fevering his brain, making him "see things." Darn it!—why did he have to squander his time, prostitute his strength, with this sort of thing?

Why? The rent, of course—and clothes, and the expense of Commencement Week, so close at hand. But, look!—yes, Madame Leonine really was beckoning to him. Mrs. Hammond really was smiling at him. Uncertainly, he stepped toward her table. The Madame was standing beside it. After all, he felt a little comfort in the Madame's presence. She had seemed to be a good soul—a little coarse, but genial. He would not feel so helplessly involved, so out of water, in talking to this ravishing creature, Mrs. Hammond, if the Madame were standing there beside him.

It would keep him reminded of the fact that, after all, he was a paid entertainer. A workman. Dancing with ladies for hire—not for fun. With grand ladies, like Mrs. Hammond. Yes, her like all the rest.

Of course, after what he had been told, he would be flattered if she were actually selecting him for her first dance this afternoon—him, a green boy, upon whom she had never cast eyes before. It would be most unnatural for him not to feel flattered. For Bob Ward, all in all, was just a boy—an essential boy. A clean boy—but arrogant in his physical self, as all boys are.

He quickened his pace a little. Somehow he knew that Freddy and Arch must be watching him. Enviously, of course. Though probably snickering up their sleeves a little, too, at him for being what they termed a "sap" who would not know enough to take advantage of a break. Who would not know how to deport himself in the face of a glittering distinction!

So it became a matter of pride.

Master Of King's Horse Abolished

London—The ancient office of the King's Master of the Horse is to be abolished in the interest of economy.

The office at present is held by the Earl of Granard, who married Miss Beatrice Mills, daughter of the late Ogden Mills, of New York, in 1909. Reports in Court circles have it that the Earl will be the last holder of this title.

Since the war economies have been effected at Court to the extent of more than 20,000 pounds annually, without any loss of efficiency, the King makes no secret of the fact that he is entirely in accord with persons who have been urging strict economy.

The Master of the Horse is the third ranking dignitary of the Sovereign's household, all questions of the King's horses and hounds as well as the stables and coaches being under his jurisdiction.

Almanac Loses Grip

The almanac is fast losing its grip on Berks county farmers. No longer do the signs of the zodiac and the upgoing of the moon exert their influence on what and where to plant. In some parts of Berks there was a time when even such jobs as making or repairing fences had to be done "in the right sign," or not at all. State farm agents and the agricultural department's work are the reason for the wane in the power of the "signs."

"Mash" Notes from World's Women in Kemal's Mail Bag

Angora, Turkey.—Mustapha Kemal Pasha, president of the Turkish republic, is the successor of Rudolph Valentino as the world's favorite "sheik."

The great and growing number of "mash" letters he receives every day from lovelorn girls in the Kansas cornbelt, from the heights of Montmartre, from Mayfair, from slant-eyed maidens in dreamy Nippon, all indicate that the Ghazi (Victorious) has a more important role in the eyes of the female world than that of being Turkey's "man of mystery."

Kemal typifies to them the silent, ruthless, superlatively handsome hero. Neither his divorced wife, Latife Hanem, nor envious males deny the Khazi his good looks or magnetic personal charms.

Unlike Valentino, the Anatolian fighter is as fair as a Norseman, with intensely blue eyes. Tanned, stalwart, the Ghazi carries his six-foot height and his 46 years becomingly.

Angora has even become a place of pilgrimage for those women admirers who can afford the journey. They are quite willing to cross the wilds of Anatolia to the isolated fortress capital for the sake of one dance with the Ghazi, one flash of his smile, or merely the sight of his broad shouldered, martial back. The regret of these admiring women is that Kismet has made into a mere president of a republic, a man who might have out-sheiked Valentino on the romantic deserts of the cinema screen.

But Mustapha Kemal is not a "tea-hound." When it was bruited about that Mussolini was casting covetous glances on the rich province of Anatolia, the Ghazi is reported to have said for the benefit of Il Duce (the conqueror):

"Come, then! Your trouble will be to find burying room."

Evaporation conquered ~in this new

ATLANTIC "Medium" MOTOR OIL

At 480° (Fahrenheit) nine representative "medium" motor oils, under test, showed an evaporation loss of 19% or greater

At 480° (Fahrenheit) the new Atlantic Motor Oil (Medium), under identically the same test, showed an evaporation loss of only 3%

IS THE outside of your motor, around the crankcase filler or "breather," messy with oil? Excessive evaporation has caused it . . . due, most likely, to the use of unstable, low-heat-resisting motor oil.

Next to gasoline dilution and road dirt contamination, evaporation is the greatest enemy motor oil has. Evaporation changes the character of oil. Thins it. Weakens it. Exposes bearings and cylinder walls to the destructive ravages of friction.

You know what that means!

Study the remarkable tests above and see how Atlantic engineers have conquered evaporation.

Centrifugal machines whirl out the quick-melting, oil-thinning waxes and impurities which hitherto have balked the usual filtering methods in the refining of motor oils.

The result is that in the new Atlantic you now can get a motor oil which will retain its "body" under the most severe operating conditions . . . and long after ordinary oils "break down."

It is all oil! The purest, smoothest, toughest lubricant you can put into your crankcase.

Try it! Keep contamination and dilution down to the minimum and you'll find it almost impossible to wear this oil out!

Atlantic "Medium" is the correct summer oil for most cars. Dealer's chart tells when a heavier Atlantic grade is preferable. Free crankcase service most everywhere.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

School Alumni Gave Operetta.—
The tuneful operetta, "A Nautical Knot" was produced on Friday evening in the high school building by the alumni of the school before a large audience. The entertainment netted about $35 which will be used in the work of the association.

Mrs. R. E. Zinn who took the leading part most acceptably trained the various choruses with the aid of Miss Carrie Hamilton, who was accompanist for the evening.

The atmosphere of the sea prevailed in the operetta. Girls were in middy blouses and the boys wore sailor costumes. Special scenery had been prepared for the evening by Thad S.
Blocher.

The principal parts were taken by Mrs. Zinn, Miss Reba Miller, Edgar Miller, Calvin Hartman and John Blocher. Others in the cast and choruses were Benton Rudisill, Richard Mishler, Maurice Baker, Hazel Thorn, Mrs. Arthur Schmitt, Olive Hoke, Earl Diehl, Luther McDonnell, Clyde Bream, Luther Musselman,
Harold Spangler, Grace Sachs, Alma
Sheads, Ethel Weaner, Louise Stahl-

Increased Pastor's Salary.—At a meeting of the Presbyterian congregation Monday evening, it was decided to increase the salary of the pastor, Rev. F. E. Taylor, from $1,000 to $1,200. Elders elected were Dr.
George C. Cobean and S. Gray Big-ham. The new trustees elected were James McCullough, Maurice Stansbury and Hugh Melhenny.

Given White Shower.—The members of the Young People's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of College church met Monday evening at the home of Miss Ruth Clutz. A white shower, consisting of embroidered centerpieces, towels and handkerchiefs, was presented Miss Flo Blocher, who is preparing to go to the mission field in Africa. The president of the Young People's society, Miss Lillie Chritzman, made the presentation and Miss Blocher gave a grateful and heartfelt response.

D. A. R. Prize.—The successful contestants in this year's D. A. R.
prize essay contest have been announced. Sarah Reen wins the first prize of $5.00 and Lottie Raffens-perger the second prize of $2.50.

Anna Weaver is given first hono-street, are ill with typhoid fever. The cases are traced to Barlow where several people have been ill with the disease.

Fairfield Traveling Library.—
Through the efforts of the teachers of Fairfield a traveling library has been secured for that vicinity. Anyone wishing a book is requested to be at the school house any Thursday evening between the hours of 7 and 8. The invitation is extended to the people of the neighboring townships as well

MOTHER

I am a woman's hopes and dreams.
I wonder does she see
The grown-up man when life began
She prayed would some day be.

How many of her dreams have I
Not knowing crushed and killed?
Along life's slopes how many hopes
Have I forever stilled?

I wonder did the man she seemed
In fancy once to see,
When time had flown, and I was grown,
At all resemble me?

For I have failed and faltered oft
And stumbled on the way,
And of the one forever gone,
She has no word to say.

She never mentions him she saw
In visions round my bed,
The dream is done, that nobler son
Is now forever dead.

And I am grown to what I am
And brave she tries to be,
No longer lives the dream. She gives Her boundless love to me.

Was Not Particular

Williamsport police recently were surprised to hear from the lips of a well-dressed caller at the police sta-

The stranger wore two valuable diadiamond stick-pin. He declined to pawn the stones, preferring the cold hospitality of the station to this step.

Little Jack Rabbit

By David Cory

I imagine, my dear little readers, ever since you finished reading the last story, you have been wondering whose little voice in the treetop helped the little rabbit to escape the cruel alligator. Well, I'll tell you right away quick. Bobbie Redvest's.
Yes, sir. His was the little voice.
That dear little bird is always warning the bunny boy of impending trouble, for once upon a time the little rabbit kicked away a snake that was about to eat a baby robin.

Well, to continue my story, as soon as the little rabbit was safe on land again, away he hopped. By and by he met two black beetles.

"Where are you going?" he asked.
"To bury a little dead mouse," they answered.

"Not Timmy Meadowmouse?" anxiously enquired the bunny boy.

"No, not Timmy Meadowmouse," replied the Beetles, and they hurried on followed by the little rabbit, until they all came to the place where lay the little dead mouse.

At once the two Beetles set to work to dig away the earth beneath it. After a while Mr. Beetle told Mrs.
Beetle to go home and that he would finish the work alone. So off she went, and Mr. Beetle kept on digging.
By and by he became so tired that he lay down and slept for over an hour.

"I'm afraid I can't wait to see the poor little mouse buried," thought the little rabbit. "Mother will be waiting for me," and off he hurried. By and by, while he was hopping along, Mr.
Beetle woke up, and at once set to work again digging, and digging, and digging. All that day he dug, and all the next, until the hollow in the earth was large enough to hold the poor little dead mouse. No wonder it took the Beetle so long a time. He was only a little beetle, and the mouse 20 times as large.

Well, as the little rabbit hopped along all of a sudden he heard Uncle Lucky's auto horn; a wonderfully musical horn that the old gentleman rabbit had purchased at the Three-in-One Cent Store. It played all sorts of tunes. Listen, little reader. Maybe

French Blind Favor
Simplified Alphabet

Paris.—A new system of touch reading for the blind, more simple than Braille, is given prominence by the efforts of its friends to have it generally adopted. The blind are said to master it in a few minutes.

Louis Mayrou devised the system because he found many war-blind could not easily learn the Braille system. His alphabet is made by various positions of three characters, a right angle, a U and a square.

President Isaac of the Union of War Blind, the government officials who investigated the method and many blind have declared themselves in favor of the new method but so far there has been no extensive utilization of it in the three years it has been available.

Children, it is said, learn Braille easy, but adults do not. Statisticians are quoted to show that only one in ten of those blinded in the war have learned the Braille system.

City Of Paris Gets Hugo's Exile Home

Paris.—Victor Hugo's home in exile, Hauteville House, built by an English pirate on the Island of Guernsey, now belongs to the City of Paris.
The author's descendants and heirs have given it to the city and the city has undertaken to maintain it as a monument.

"No royal chateau surpasses it in beauty," says one commentator. The novelist loved old things, and the antique treasures he gathered, furniture from France, England and the Orient, tapestries, tiles, a Delft chimney and other art objects, he arranged with exceptional skill.

Hugo was in exile 18 years, but never was idle. His writings are among the most voluminous of any author. Yet he found time to browse everywhere and to work with his hands. At Hauteville House there is still his cabinet-maker's shop, where, with one skilled man to help him, he made furniture for the sake of creating something beautiful.

Hugo bought the place with his profits from "Les Contemplations."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THINKING FOR YOURSELF

IT DOES seem as though the most precious possession we can call our own should be our own thoughts.

The book that stimulates me most is that one wherein the writer has so expressed himself that I feel a separate individual talking to me.

We speak of original thinkers. But there are none. The best that the wisest can do is to put an old thought in a new way, or at least in a manner such that the largest number may be most attracted to it.

Each of us may use an individual technique. That is, we can put the God-given touch of individual personality back of each one of our thoughts, and thus give the world something full of inspiration and beauty.

America's Gold Draws Europe's Art Treasures Here; Two Hundred Millions Paid for World Beauties

Nation Is Securing Largest Collection of Masterpieces

NEW YORK (U. I. N. Special).—Just as Rome drew to it art from all corners of the Mediterranean as it grew rich and fat, so is the United States acquiring the important paintings, tapestry and statuary of Europe.

It is estimated that objects of art thus far brought to this country from the Old World are worth $200,000,000, and in the past few years, dealers estimate that within a short time America will be in dominant possession of the world's art.

The works of art now accumulating in America are coming from England, the Netherlands, Italy, Spain, France and Germany, most notable among which recently have been the six Gothic tapestries of the "Hunt of the Unicorn," and for which John D. Rockefeller, Jr., paid $1,500,000. Another outstanding purchase was that made by Henry E. Huntington, of California, who paid $640,000 for Gainsborough's "Blue Boy."

Among some of the world notable treasures included in America's present collection is the painting of "Pinkie," by the British artist, Lawrence, and for which Duveen Brothers, of New York, paid $370,000.

A work by the Italian painter, Raphael, entitled "Small Cowper Madonna," now in the collection of George E. Widener, of Philadelphia, was brought to this country at a cost of $700,000, together with three of Rembrandt's canvases entitled "The Mill," and the "Portrait of a Man," and the "Portrait of a Woman." Widener paid $475,000 for the first and $250,000 each for the other two.

Other important purchases made abroad and added to America's collection were such canvases as the "Portrait of the Duchess of Cumberland," by Gainsborough, sold to Huntington for $300,000, while the Metropolitan Museum of Art paid $500,000 for a painting by Raphael entitled "Virgin and Child Enthroned."

America is buying up Europe's art. Millions are crossing the ocean eastward, and treasures in oil and stone are crossing westward. Gainsborough's famous "Blue Boy" and Lawrence's "Pinkie," both shown above, are only two of the valued works acquired, the former by Henry E. Huntington, of California, for $640,000, and the latter by Duveen Brothers for $370,000.

Site of Capitol Changed by Woman's Love for Tree on Hill

Washington. — How a woman's fondness for the spot where for eleven years she was held captive by an Indian chief helped determine the site of the national capital is an almost forgotten story of a generation ago.

Magdalena Noyes, with her husband and two small children, was captured by Chief Monnacassett, of the Anacostas, whose wigwam was beneath a giant oak on a hill which commands a view of what now is the city of Washington, but then was a forested basin.

All of the captives except Magdalena and her young child, an infant, were put to death. Monnacassett, attracted by her beauty, desired to make her his squaw, but she refused, declaring that she would rather die. The chief thereupon decreed that she should remain his prisoner. She must not, on pain of death, he told her, go beyond the shade of the oak that spread its branches above the wigwam.

For eleven years she endured her unique captivity. Her infant became a beautiful maiden, and she named her Gwanna, the Indian word for "Hope."

As the years passed things went badly for Monnacassett, and one day in a skirmish near the present site of the White House he was mortally wounded. Not long afterward the valley was bought as a site for the national capital. A treaty was signed with the Indians under the oak tree, and, as interpreter for the Anacostas, Magdalena spoke with white men for the first time during her captivity.

The newcomers offered to restore Magdalena to her people if she so desired; but she only asked that they build for her a cottage beneath the oak and allow her to remain there. This they did, and a negro slave was given to her. He became her sole reliance and by his labor provided for her needs.

The city of Washington began to grow. Commissioners came to choose locations for its public buildings. The hill of the oak tree was desired for the building of the capitol, but so deeply had Magdalena become attached to the spot that she was left undisturbed, and the present Capitol Hill was chosen instead.

STRIP OF LAND WITHOUT OWNER

Glen Rock, (AP).—There is a strip of land containing 1½ acres between the properties of Eckert Bortner and William Frey, here, which can be termed "No Man's Land" with truth. No one has a deed for it and as the Indians are extinct in this section, it reverts back to the government.

The land is situated near the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad between here and Seitzland and is almost useless, as most of it contains huge rocks. It was previously covered with timber, but some one removed this some time ago and the land, which is in wedge shape, is barren now.

Pacism is, as its name indicates, only when war has sounded, for then a harmless potion the use of which only would it be efficacious.—Romain Rolland.

Lost Goethe Art Collection Found

Berlin.—Goethe's remarkable collection of his own 88 black and white drawings and water colors, which the Goethe museum at Weimar sought throughout Germany for 25 years, is now in the museum as a result of a curious coincidence.

The drawings, largely German and Bohemian landscapes, were known to have been presented by Goethe in 1807 to Princess Caroline of Saxe-Weimar with a note reading: "This is how I whiled away my leisure moments during my travels of recent years."

The princess willed the collection to her intimate friend, Christiane von Reitzenstein. Her descendants evidently thought as little of the drawings as did Germany's greatest poet, who virtually apologized for dabbling in such foolishness.

A short time ago a distant relative of the von Reitzenstein family submitted the drawings to Prof. Hans Wahl, director of the Goethe museum, who had been conducting the search, and asked if they were genuine. He said he found them in an old trunk of family relics. Doctor Wahl immediately recognized his long-sought prize and purchased it.

SILK HATS ALWAYS STOP LONDON CARS

London.—Silk hats are the best insurance against being run over by a motorcar in the London traffic jam.

Bus and taxi drivers generally regard the stovepipe hat as the insignia of a noble lord, and no self-respecting driver could dream of running down such a superior person.

As a matter of fact high hats are now worn more by bank clerks and messengers than by members of the nobility. But the tradition still persists that the morning coat and plug hat are the uniform of quality.

In the swirl at Piccadilly Circus and Trafalgar Square traffic cops always halt traffic for members of the high hat brigade, and in less congested centers, where there is no official control, the drivers themselves halt for the silk hat.

Village Protests Opening Of Casino

Berlin.—Attempts to make a Monte Carlo of the north, out of the renowned former Hohenzollern summer resort of Zoppot near Danzig are meeting with vigorous opposition from the fashionable residents.

A petition with more than 1,000 signatures demanding the closing of the Zoppot casino has been presented to the Danzig city council. The petition says that the existence of the "gambling hell hole" prevents "thousands of decent visitors from coming to the beach resort."

Former Crown Prince Frederick William maintained a luxurious palace in Zoppot. Thousands of the German nobility still congregate there in the summer.

SPECIAL TRAINS $25 IN GERMANY

Berlin.—Soon any patron of the German railways will be able, at least theoretically, to indulge in the luxury of a special train for $25.

To encourage week-end travel, the railway administration is about to announce far-going concessions to the public. One of these provides that the minimum guarantee demanded for furnishings a special train is only 100 marks, or about $25.

Another provision is that a special train can be run whenever 70 purchasers of second class, or 100 of third class, or 150 of fourth class tickets so demand. This is to accommodate the countless "veretins" with which Germany abounds and which are in the habit of arranging excursions for their membership.

Twin Officers Can Almost Swap Their Service Records

Washington.—The army has two pairs of twins who have twin service records, all first lieutenants. They are Herbert E. and Herschel D. Baker, of the field artillery, and Claude T. and Clem O. Gunn, of the coast artillery.

Similarity in their service records is more pronounced in the case of the Baker brothers than of the Gunn brothers, although the latter seldom have been far apart in any important point. Lieutenant Herbert E. Baker is now with the Fourteenth Field Artillery at Fort Sheridan, Illinois, and his brother with the Second Field Artillery at Fort Bragg, N. C., while the Gunn Brothers are at Manila, Clem with the fifty-ninth Coast Artillery and Claude with the Sixtieth.

Born at Waltonville, Illinois, November 21, 1896, the sons of Colonel David Baker, of the Medical Corps, the Baker brothers attended Marist college, Atlanta, Georgia, from January, 1909, until November, 1913. They enlisted in the regular army February 3, 1917, and were assigned as privates to Troop C, Second Cavalry, afterwards rising to the grade of privates, first class, in that troop and subsequently serving in Headquarters Troop, Fourth Division, and the One Hundred and Forty-seventh Field Artillery until they entered the Third Officers' Training School at Fort Oglethorpe, Georgia, January 5, 1918.

They were commissioned second lieutenants with emergency rating and served in the American Expeditionary Forces together from April, 1918, until August, 1919, being wounded on the same day, October 26, 1918, in the Meuse Argonne engagement. Permanent rating as second lieutenants was given them a year later, and promotion followed in July, 1921. Both took the basic course in the Field Artillery School, 1921-1922, but after that parted company to take separate assignments.

Each is married and has one child. Herschel D. has the army serial number 0-11391, while Herbert E. has 0-11392, and their promotion numbers are 7144 and 7145 respectively.

SOOT GIVES BLACK EYE TO LONDON ART

London.—London's smoke and dust sometimes have a comic effect upon its statues.

Over the entrance of Old Bailey, the central criminal police-court, are three beautiful female figures. One, whose position exposes her to the washing of the rain, is normal; a second, whose face is protected from that cleansing, has the appearance of a negro with Grecian features, while the third has a black eye.

A fine classic head which adorns the great entrance archway to Waterloo railway station, gathers—in between periodical brushings—dust on head, lip and cheek in such a way as to transform it into a fierce-looking mustached motorist, with cap and goggles complete.

King Plans Holding Real Scotch Party

London.—King George and Queen Mary are the true friends of Scotch plaid manufacturers.

The garden party which their majesties will give at Holyrood castle, Edinburgh, July 15, will be the biggest social function in Scotland for years.

More than 4,000 invitations are to be issued and all the Scotch clans are digging their Harry Lauder costumes out of the mothballs and placing orders for kilts to replace those which do not measure up to regal standards.

Bagpipers from all over Scotland are seeking royal commands to supply music for the party, which will be all the more interesting to Highlanders as the duchess of York, who is a true Highland Mary with genuine Scotch ancestry, will be back from Australia by that time and is expected to assist Queen Mary.

God Almighty has blessed Chicago with everything there is.—Mayor William Thompson.

Pulling ForceSMALLEST WATCH
IN WORLD SHOWNDuplicate of Timepiece Presented Queen Marie and Miss America.

What is said to be the smallest watch in the world will be on display in the windows of Blocher's jewelry store on Center Square Saturday. The watch is an exact duplicate of the one awarded to Queen Marie of Rumania, on her recent visit to America and also like one presented to Miss Norma Smallwood, of Tulsa, Oklahoma, selected as Miss America in the 1926 prize beauty contest.

A dime displayed along side the watch very clearly shows the timepiece to be considerably smaller than the coin. The watch is very attractively made of solid platinum and is studded with perfectly cut diamonds set around the edge of the case.

Because of its extreme smallness, it was impossible to include the regular winding mechanism in the movement. Instead of being wound like the ordinary watch, this one is wound by rotating the back of the case to and fro. In spite of its size, the watch keeps remarkably good time. A very careful record kept over a period of a week shows that the watch had a total deviation of only ninety seconds.

The watch was made by the Bulova watch company of New York, one of their watch makers spending more than three months in the production of this one watch. Some of the parts are so small that they can be handled only with the aid of powerful magnifying glasses. The screws are so tiny that they resemble grains of dust. These were made with the same care and precision as if they were one inch long. It is estimated that it would require more than 38,000 of these screws to fill an ordinary thimble. The hair spring in an ordinary watch is of about the same thickness as a human hair, but in this watch it is about one-third that thickness.

The jewels used in the movement are made of genuine hard red rubies and are so small that it takes 220 of them to equal the weight of an ordinary postage stamp. These comparisons were cited by Mr. Culbertson to give the layman, who has little or no knowledge of watches, an idea as to the marvelous construction of this remarkable little time keeper. It is valued by Mr. Culbertson at $1,000.00 and it will be on display all next week. The watches are not on the market, solicited. He had some difficulty obtaining the small timepiece to show Mr. Blocher said, and no sales are his Gettysburg friends and customers.

Find Old Wine

While workmen were tearing down historic Hotel Glen at Glen Rock they unearthed a quart bottle of port wine which was at least 69 years old. The liquor promptly disappeared but the workmen related that it had been found under a marble slab which bore the date 1858, the year the hotel was built. On the bottle was a cut of a woman and the words "Port Wine."
